Machinery Update is a magazine that does exactly what it says on the tin – it updates readers on everything they need to know about processing and packaging machinery, robotics and vision technology.

This could be a new machine; a recent installation; a component part of a machine; some clever software; an industry issue; a feature on a specific market sector; new people in the industry; a diary date; health and safety information; the most recent legislative changes and any implications these may bring or news from the PPMA itself including its range of technical seminars.

And it’s easy to contribute. All PPMA members are eligible to be included in Machinery Update and we welcome all submissions. Don’t worry if you don’t have a PR company to put any information together; all you need to do is email me some bullet points and I can take it from there. I work with a lot of companies this way and can even interview your customers for quotes once you have the permission for me to do so.

We are fiercely focused on the magazine. You won’t find general business stuff or mildly relevant information for technical folk. We ONLY write about machinery and anything pertaining to it. That is why readers know what they are getting and like what they read.

And don’t forget that the readers of Machinery Update are working in the manufacturing industry across the UK. So if you want to tell your current or potential customers anything new about your business, tell Machinery Update first. It’s a free and quick route to market and building your profile can also help with recruiting skilled people, too.

Don’t miss out on this opportunity… we look forward to hearing from you.

Like any good reading material, keeping the content focused and relevant is key.

The E-Bulletin sticks to this mantra but more importantly, gives the reader just enough information, without overload, to help them in their day to day jobs.

Published six times a year, between print editions of the main magazine the bulletin creates, in effect, a monthly news feed to the end-user market.

Each bulletin is sent to an average audience of 39,000 qualified recipients and consistently achieves an open rate well in-excess of 30%.

There are two advertising options on each bulletin:

Main banner
There are two banners running between the 2nd & 3rd editorial and 4th & 5th editorial; each charged @£800 (subject to availability).

Info box
At the bottom of the E-Bulletin @£200 per edition, ideal for promoting events, training, webinars etc.
